

Privacy Policy

Effective Date: 29 September 2026

Last Updated: 29 September 2026

MecQP ("MecQP", "we", "us", or "our") is an independent student-created online repository intended to help students access previous-year question papers and submit question papers for review and possible inclusion in the repository.

This Privacy Policy explains what information MecQP may collect, how that information is used, how it is protected, when it may be disclosed, and the choices available to users.

By using MecQP, you acknowledge that you have read this Privacy Policy. Where applicable law requires consent for a particular processing activity, MecQP will seek such consent through an appropriate mechanism.

1. Who Operates MecQP

MecQP is operated as an independent student project by:

Name: Achind Babu

Email: admin@mecqp.com

Website: <https://mecqp.com>

GitHub: <https://github.com/AchindBabuCS/mecqp>

MecQP is not an official website or service of Government Model Engineering College, APJ Abdul Kalam Technological University (KTU), or any other educational institution unless expressly stated otherwise.

2. Information We Collect

MecQP is designed to collect as little personal information as reasonably necessary for its operation.

2.1 Information provided when submitting a question paper

When you submit a question paper through MecQP, the information associated with the submission may include:

- the uploaded PDF file;
- the filename of the uploaded file;
- the description or metadata supplied with the submission;
- information necessary to identify the submission and display its status;
- the date and time of submission; and
- technical information generated by the website or hosting infrastructure where applicable.

MecQP does *not intentionally require students to provide their name, roll number, phone number, email address, or other personal contact information as part of the ordinary question-paper submission process.

Users must not include personal information belonging to themselves or other individuals in submitted question papers or submission descriptions unless it is strictly necessary and lawful to do so.

2.2 Information collected through administrative functions

MecQP has private administrative functionality used by the operator to manage the repository.

Administrative authentication information, such as administrator credentials and session information, may be processed for the purpose of securing and operating the administrative interface.

Administrative credentials are not publicly accessible.

2.3 Technical and security information

When you access MecQP, the website's hosting infrastructure, web server, security systems, or related services may process technical information such as:

- IP address;
- date and time of access;
- browser or user-agent information;
- requested pages or resources;
- error information; and
- other technical information contained in standard server or security logs.

Such information may be processed for purposes including website operation, security, troubleshooting, abuse prevention, incident investigation, and compliance with applicable law.

3. How We Use Information

Information processed by MecQP may be used for the following purposes:

1. to provide access to previous-year question papers;
2. to receive and review submitted question papers;
3. to identify and manage submissions;
4. to display submission status;
5. to communicate or display administrative decisions relating to submissions where applicable;
6. to maintain and administer the website;
7. to protect MecQP against unauthorized access, abuse, malicious activity, and security incidents;

8. to diagnose technical problems and maintain website reliability;
9. to comply with applicable legal obligations or lawful requests; and
10. to protect the rights, safety, security, and property of MecQP, its users, and other relevant persons.

MecQP does not sell users' personal information.

MecQP does not use submitted information for targeted advertising.

4. Question Papers and Uploaded Content

Question papers submitted to MecQP may be reviewed by the administrator before publication.

A submitted file is not automatically published merely because it has been uploaded.

The administrator may:

- review the file;
- inspect its contents and metadata;
- verify or assess the information supplied with it;
- accept or reject the submission;
- request or make appropriate corrections where applicable;
- remove a submission; or
- take other reasonable action necessary to operate the repository safely and lawfully.

Where a submitted file is rejected, the uploaded file may be deleted from the submission storage after the review process, while limited submission information may be retained where reasonably necessary for administration, security, legal compliance, or record-keeping.

Where a submission is accepted, MecQP may retain and publish the relevant question paper as part of its repository, subject to applicable law and MecQP's Terms of Service.

5. Cookies and Sessions

MecQP may use technically necessary cookies or session mechanisms required for functions such as:

- maintaining an authenticated administrator session;
- protecting administrative functions;
- maintaining security; and
- enabling website functionality.

MecQP does not use cookies for behavioral advertising.

If third-party services are introduced in the future that use cookies or similar technologies for analytics, security, CDN, or other purposes, this Privacy Policy may be updated accordingly.

6. Third-Party Services and Hosting

MecQP may rely on third-party infrastructure providers to operate the website, including hosting, domain, DNS, security, storage, networking, or related services.

Such providers may process technical information necessary to provide their services.

At the time of deployment, the operator may identify relevant providers in this section or elsewhere on the website where appropriate.

MecQP does not authorize third-party providers to use submitted personal information for purposes unrelated to providing the services for which they are engaged, except where required by law or otherwise permitted by applicable law.

7. Information Sharing and Disclosure

MecQP does not ordinarily sell, rent, or trade personal information.

Information may nevertheless be disclosed where reasonably necessary:

- to hosting, infrastructure, security, or technical service providers;
- to investigate or respond to security incidents;
- to protect MecQP, its users, or others from fraud, abuse, or unlawful activity;
- where disclosure is required by applicable law, regulation, court order, or lawful governmental request;
- where necessary to establish, exercise, or defend legal rights; or
- where otherwise permitted or required by applicable law.

MecQP may also disclose information where the user has requested or authorized such disclosure.

8. Data Security

MecQP takes reasonable technical and organizational measures intended to protect information against unauthorized access, alteration, disclosure, misuse, loss, or destruction.

Security measures may include access controls, authentication, password hashing, CSRF protection, restricted administrative access, server security controls, and other measures appropriate to the nature of the information handled.

However, no website, computer system, network, or method of electronic transmission can be guaranteed to be completely secure.

Accordingly, users should not submit information that they are not authorized to disclose or information that they require to remain absolutely confidential.

9. Data Retention

MecQP aims to retain information only for as long as reasonably necessary for the purpose for which it was collected, for the operation and security of the service, for legitimate record-keeping purposes, or as required or permitted by applicable law.

Different categories of information may therefore be retained for different periods.

For example:

- published question papers may be retained for as long as MecQP operates the repository or until their removal is appropriate;
- pending submissions may be retained while they are being reviewed;
- rejected uploaded files may be deleted after review, subject to legitimate retention requirements;
- submission metadata may be retained for administration, status tracking, security, or legal purposes; and
- security and technical logs may be retained for periods determined by operational, security, and legal requirements.

MecQP will not retain personal information indefinitely merely because it was once collected.

10. User Rights and Requests

Subject to applicable law and any conditions or limitations imposed by it, users may contact MecQP regarding personal information associated with them and may request appropriate action, which may include:

- information about personal data processed by MecQP;
- correction of inaccurate information;
- deletion or erasure where applicable;
- withdrawal of consent where processing is based on consent and withdrawal is legally available; or
- raising a privacy-related complaint or concern.

Requests should be sent to:

Privacy Contact: admin@mecqp.com

MecQP may need sufficient information to verify the identity or legitimacy of a request before acting on it.

Nothing in this section limits any rights available to a person under applicable law.

11. Children's Information

MecQP is intended primarily as an educational resource for students.

MecQP does not intentionally request or collect personal information from children for purposes unrelated to providing the service.

Users should not submit personal information about minors or other individuals through MecQP unless they are authorized to do so and the submission is necessary and lawful.

Where applicable law imposes additional requirements concerning children's personal data, MecQP will handle such information in accordance with those requirements.

12. Copyright, Privacy, and Personal Information in Submissions

Users must not upload question papers containing unnecessary personal information, including student names, roll numbers, phone numbers, signatures, photographs, or other personal information belonging to identifiable individuals.

If a question paper or other uploaded material contains personal information or other content that should not be publicly accessible, MecQP may restrict, remove, or otherwise manage access to that material.

If you believe that content hosted on MecQP improperly contains your personal information, please contact us at:

with sufficient information to identify the relevant material.

13. Changes to This Privacy Policy

MecQP may update this Privacy Policy from time to time to reflect changes to:

- the website;
- the information collected;
- data-processing practices;
- security measures;
- applicable law; or
- third-party services used by the website.

The updated version will be published on the website with a revised "Last Updated" date.
